

Omais Sharif

Omais Sharif is a Vice President and Economist at RBS Greenwich Capital focusing on the U.S. economy, with a particular emphasis on the housing market. He regularly publishes reports on construction outlays, housing starts and home sales, as well as on the manufacturing sector. His work has frequently been cited in major business and financial media outlets, including the Wall Street Journal. Omais joined RBS Greenwich Capital in 2003. Previously, he was an analyst at Standard & Poors DRI in Washington, D.C, where he worked on consulting projects for the U.S. government. Following Standard & Poors DRI, he worked as an Associate U.S. Economist at Banca IMI Securities Corporation in New York from 2001-2003. At Banca IMI, he constructed the firm's economic forecasts and co-wrote all its major economic publications. Omais earned both a bachelor's degree and a master's degree in economics from McGill University in Montreal, Canada.
