

BRIAN SULLIVAN

Brian Sullivan anchors Bloomberg Television's "In Focus" program (12 -2pm ET). He also frequently hosts Bloomberg's "For the Record."

"In Focus" reports on different angles to the day's top business news as well as conducting interviews with leading investors, executives and politicians. "For the Record" airs on the weekend and conducts longer interviews with executives to greater examine important issues.

In addition to anchoring, Brian conducts seminars, speaks to groups about financial journalism, and is often asked to moderate panels on the hot topics in current events and the financial markets.

He has been with Bloomberg since 1997. Prior to joining Bloomberg, Brian traded chemical commodities for Mitsubishi International.

Brian earned a bachelor's degree in political science from Virginia Tech, certificate in journalism from New York University School of Continuing Education, and a law degree from Brooklyn Law School.

Outside of work he enjoys racing cars. He is married and has one daughter.